INTERPERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS

- An interpersonal relationship is a connection, closeness or bond between that people have with each other.
- The first relationship we have is with our family members.
- As we grow older, we begin to have relationships with other members of the society.

WAYS OF RELATING WELL WITH OTHERS

Getting along well with others is important for our peace of mind and happiness. It also builds trust.

The following ways shows how to relate well with others:

- Using words carefully. Some words can hurt other people's feelings. Always be polite when talking to other people. Show love, concern and care for others.
- Think before talking especially when you are angry, because you may say things that u will end up regretting.
- Be a good listener so that you may understand others and respond in a friendly and polite manner. (One has to listen to understand not to always respond).
- Show respect to everybody even those who are different from you.
- What you say to people must be what you expect them to say about you.
- If you have a problem with another person, be honest and say clearly what the problem is.
- Learn to apologies for your mistakes and accept apologies from those who have hurt you.
- Put yourself in other people's place. This will help you to understand how your behaviour affects them.

TYPES OF RELATIONSHIPS

There are two types of relationships,

- Primary relationships
- Secondary relationships

❖ Primary relationships:

- Are relationships between people who are close to each other.
- They are very important and difficult to live without. Eg

-Parents -Siblings - Own children -Cousins
-Wives and husbands

❖ Secondary relationships

- Are relationships between individuals in different groups.
- They are not as deep as or as close as primary relationships. Eg

-Teachers -Workmates - Friends -Classmates
-Schoolmates -Teammates -Doctors and patients

IMPORTANCE OF RELATIONSHIPS

- We get protection, basic needs and support from our parents and relatives.
- Family members take care of children when they are young. Without that care children will not be able survive on their own.
- We are loved by our family and we give love in return.

- Our families teach us how to behave. Older family members act as role models to the young ones and teach them about the history of their family and values which are treasured by the family.
- We learn a lot of important things from our relationships.
- Good relationships help us to live a positive life. We can share good times and bad times with people.
- We can ask advice and help if we have to make a difficult decision.

BEHAVIOURS THAT CAN CAUSE NEGATIVE EFFECTS ON RELATIONSHIPS

- Jealousy: when you do not want other to have nice things or wanting what other have.
- Prejudice: prejudging other people.
- Dishonesty: not telling the truth.
- Untrustworthiness: when you cannot be trusted.
- Bullying: hurting or threatening to harm or make fun of people who are weaker than you.
- Gossiping: saying bad things about people behind their back.
- S*tealing*: taking things without the owner's permission.
- Using insulting language or hurtful words when talking to others.

BEHAVIOURS THAT HAS POSITIVE EFFECTS ON RELATIONSHIPS

-Compassion	-Honesty	-Generosity	-Trustworthiness
-Tolerance	-Love	-Kindness	-Openness
-Compassion	-Fairness	-Respect

HOW BEHAVIOUR CAN BUILD OR DESTROY RELATION SHIPS

- To build strong relationships, we need to show that we care and that we can think of other people before ourselves. We have to show that we can be trusted and that we respect one another.

- Relationships can be easily damaged by hurtful and unfriendly behaviour. When one gossip, it can lead to argument which can break the relationship.

- Peer pressure influence behaviour in a positive or negative way. Negative peer pressure will destroy relationships while positive peer pressure will build or nurture a relationship.

- The way we behave towards other people may either build or destroy a relationship. It is important therefore to know and be aware of how we behave towards others so that we do not destroy positive relationships.

- Respecting one another regardless of age, sex, race, status will build positive relationships. One has to treat others the way that they would like to be treated.

HOW THE PERCEPTION OF OTHERS CAN BUILD OR DESTROY RELATIONSHIPS

- At times people prejudge others and rate them in a particular way. They think that another person is low in terms of their social status. This means that they do not respect something about the person. The person may be poor, uneducated, unpopular or different in a particular way, thus destroying relationships.
- Some people look down on other people. They do not treat them well and show no respect for them. This can lead to relationships being destroyed.
- It is very important that all a people are treated with respect and dignity without looking at their level of education or position in life. This should be done because they are human beings.

THE IMPORTANCE OF RELATIONSHIPS IN PEOPLE'S LIVES

- When people live and mix with others they learn new things that they did not know before – things about other people and things about themselves. This helps them to understand themselves better.
- When people spend time doing things, they discover that they are all different. Every one of us is unique – no two people are the same. We must learn to love and accept ourselves the way we are. We must also learn to accept others the way they are.
- We should understand that there are things in life that we can change and there are things that we will never be able to change – no matter what we do.

HOW SHARING BUILDS RELATIONSHIPS

- There are people who give certain things and people who receive them. It does not matter what is given, whether its ideas, listening ear, love, care or food, money, gifts. People who give and receive develop a relationship that brings them closer to each other.
- A Setswana proverb "Mabogo dinku a a thebana" express the importance of sharing, giving and receiving. Both the giver and the receiver become closer to each other. They develop trust between them and concern for one another.
- Friends and family members sometimes strengthen their relationships by exchanging gifts. Sharing makes a relationship grow stronger.
- Sharing makes us happy because we know that we have helped someone.
- Sometimes we need to share hardships too. When times are hard/tough it helps to have someone to share the burden with.

THE NEED FOR FORGIVENESS AND RECONCILIATION IN RELATIONSHIPS

- Forgiveness is the act of excusing a mistake or offense
- Reconciliation is the re-establishing of cordial relations, being friends again.

The two are important because:

- Sometimes people get angry at each other and the relationship may end. Therefore it is important for people to talk and try to resolve their problems. When people talk about some problems which separated them, they are able to solve their differences and mend the relationship.
- When a person who made a mistake asks for forgiveness, we forgive them when they accept that they made a mistake. Forgiveness leads to reconciliation. When the two have taken place, there should be no grudges.

SUMMARY

The bonds that we have with different people are important and it is important that we nurture these bonds to build relationships. We need to be able to forgive others for the wrong they have done to use. We also expect others to forgive us for the wrong things we had done.

PEER PRESSURE

Peers are the friends or classmates one usually goes around with. These people are more or less the same age as you and you would regard them as your equals.

EXAMPLES OF PEER GROUPS

-Classmates	-Teammates	-Schoolmates	-Friends
-Club mates	-Play mates	-Neighbours children

WAYS OF DEALING WITH PEER PRESSURE

- Peer pressure is when a person feels forced to do something by their peers. One can deal with peer pressure through the following:
    - Knowing what you want to do and what you do not want to do.
    - Avoiding peers who behave badly.
    - Trusting oneself.
    - Judging whether something is right or wrong before doing it.
    - Having self-confidence and high self-esteem.
    - Being able to make independent decisions.

IMPORTANCE OF MAKING AN INDEPENDENT DECISION

- It will make you feel good about yourself and improve your self-esteem.
- It will make you more confident about making the right decisions.
- You can avoid getting into trouble because of bad decisions made by the group. Helps one avoid negative peer pressure.
- Making own decisions allows one to think carefully and be very sure that it is really what they want to do.

EVALUATION OF PEER PRESSURE

The influence of one's peers may be negative or positive depending on the consequences. For example:

- Positive peer pressure:
  You might find yourself in a group of people who like to read and study. This may influence you to do the same because you want to be part of the group. This is a positive influence because you are learning good study habits.
- Negative peer pressure
  Your peers may tell you that they once broke into a home economics laboratory and stole some food without getting caught. They invite you to join them next time because they think they are clever. This is a bad influence because you are learning criminal habits. It is therefore important to be careful when choosing friends.

SUMMARY

Peer pressure refers to the influence of your peers to do things so that you fit in to the group. You have to be confident enough to say no to what your peers ask you to do if it id negative peer pressure. You should be ready to lose friends if necessary.

POSITIVE LIVING

Positive living means being confident about what you do, even in the middle of difficulties. You are always looking forward and expecting things to be better than they have been in the past. Sick people are helped by having a positive attitude and by being cared for by people who have a positive attitude.

ORGANISATIONS THAT PROVIDE CARE FOR OTHERS

-The Red Cross -The Cheshire Foundation -Pudulogong -Childline

REASONS FOR CARING FOR PEOPLE IN NEED

It is important to care for people who have special needs as this makes them feel accepted and loved and also helps them to accept their conditions. Some reasons are:

- It is morally right to care and help those in need.
- To help them cope with situations or problems that they are faced with.
- To give them hope in life.
- To help them live a better life.
- To make them more comfortable.
- People with special needs have the same thoughts and feelings as we have, therefore, we must treat them with respect as we treat everyone else.
  The care giver also benefits by feeling a sense of satisfaction.

HOW PEOPLE LIVING WITH HIV/AIDS CAN TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES

It is imperative that HIV+ people take good care of themselves so that they can improve their health and have a strong immunity to fight off infections and other diseases. They can care for themselves by:

- Eating a balanced diet.
- Exercising regularly.
- Have enough sleep and rest.
- Having safe and protected sex.
- Going for check-up on time.
- Taking the right medication on time.
- Being positive and hopeful about life

HOW PEOPLE LIVING WITH HIV/AIDS CAN TAKE CARE OF OTHERS

HIV+ people can take care of others by:

- Having only one sexual partner.
- Using a condom.
- Encouraging other to go for HIV test.
- Telling other people about their status so that they can protect themselves.
- HIV+ pregnant women must enrol in the PMTCT program (Prevention of Mother To Child Transmission).
- Counselling and advising other sick people.
- Educating others on how to protect themselves from getting infected.

VALUES PROMOTED THROUGH HOME BASED CARE

People whose illnesses cannot be cured at the hospital are looked after by their families at home through Community Home Based Care (CHBC) support system. The following values are promoted:

- Love
- Kindness
- Compassion
- Sympathy
- Respect
- Privacy
- Helping
- Forgiveness
- Sharing

When we show these values, we are saying that we believe everyone is important and that they deserve to be loved and respected.

THE ROLE PLAYED BY RELIGIOUS ORGANISATIONS TO SUPPORT PEOPLE LIVING WITH HIV & AIDS

- Religious organisation has built some hospitals such as the Seventh Day Adventist hospital in Kanye which was built by the Seventh Day Adventist Church; The Deborah Retief Memorial Hospital in Mochudi was set up by the Dutch Reformed Church.
- They pray for them in their homes and in hospitals.
- They counsel them to help them accept and make peace with their situation.
- They counsel the family members of people infected with HIV and AIDS so that they can take care of their sick relatives.
- They give them hope and courage by preaching to them and praying for them.
- They give them food, clothes and other necessities.
- They build homes and hospices where they can be taken care of.
- They provide love and home based care for the sick.

Organisation	What it does
1. Holy Cross Hospice	• A hospice is where people who are terminally ill are cared for. • They visit patients at home and give them medicine. • They counsel patients and family members during the illness and support the family when the patient dies. • Help identify and support orphans.
2. Al-Muslimah (The Botswana Muslim Association Women's Wing)	• They help HIV+ people by giving them clothes, money and other necessities.
3. The Botswana Christian Aids Intervention Program (BOCAIP) AIM: to give a Christian response to AIDS	• Offers counselling to people with HIV/AIDS and their families. • Runs day care centres for orphans throughout the country. • Provides training in health care and counselling. • Co-ordinates project run by different Christian churches and organisations.
4. Tshepong Counselling Network (TCN)	• Offers counselling Gaborone council clinics and Princess Marina Hospital. • Trains counsellors from Gaborone churches. • Visit patients and their families at home. • Teaches people about HIV/AIDS.

HOW RELIGIOUS VALUES PROMOTE THE PREVENTION OF HIV/AIDS

- Religious leaders teach their followers that it wrong to have sex before marriage. They encourage them to wait until they are married. They encourage their followers to be faithful to their partners in marriage. The values of sexual abstinence and faithfulness in marriage can prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS.
- The holy writings teachings and teachings of all major religions have laws against:
  - ✓ Sex between people who are not married to each other.
  - ✓ Premarital sex – sex before marriage.
  - ✓ Adultery – sex with someone`s husband or wife.
  - ✓ Prostitution – sex in return of money or things.

ORPHAN HOOD AND DESTITUTION

- Orphan: is a child who is below 18 years and has lost both parents.
- Orphan-hood: is the state of being an orphan.
- Orphanage: a place where orphans live and are taken care of.

ISSUES RELATED TO DEATH OF A PARENT

- Parents are the breadwinners and they take care of the children. When they die, children are at times left with no one to take care of them.
- Children are emotionally affected by death of their parents and as a result they might do badly at school or have a change in their behaviour (if there is no one to help or advise them).
- Other family members can take children's inheritance and leave them with nothing.
- Family members might abuse the children who can end up running away from home and become street kids.

WAYS OF SHOWING RESPONSIBILITY AND PROTECTION OVER INHERITANCE

Inheritance is the money, property and other things that are left to someone when a person dies.

- Children have the right to inherit the things that their parents owned before they died. No one has the right to take anything from them.
- The property must be fairly divided among the children. There should be no cheating and fighting over it.
- Those who have received inheritance should take good care of it and not misuse it.
- Parents can protect the property they wish to leave to their children by making a WILL.
    - A WILL is a document a person writes saying who should take their property after they die.
    - It is a good idea to have a will because courts can help in dividing your property according to your wishes.

WAYS IN WHICH ORPHANS CAN PROTECT THEMSELVES AGAINST ABUSE

- Reporting any cases of abuse to relevant people such as Kgosi, social worker, the police, pastors, teachers, Childline etc.
- Reporting people who want to steal their inheritance.
- Knowing their rights so that they can the difference between those who want to help them or abuse them.
- Working hard at school.
- Using their inheritance wisely.
- Cooperating with their siblings so that people do not abuse or cheat them.

HOW PEOPLE IN THE COMMUNITY CAN HELP ORPHANS

- They can adopt or foster orphans. This means legally taking orphans into their homes and treating them as their own children. The lives of orphans will be bettered.
- Giving donations of money, clothes, food and items to organisations that look after orphans.
- Building orphanages.
- Donating money, food, clothes and necessary items to orphans.
- Visit orphans and take them for an outing. This will make orphans feel loved and wanted.

RELIGIOUS AND OTHER ORGANISATIONS THAT HELP ORPHANS

- The Government
- Masiela Trust Fund
- Masiela Foundation
- Debswana Mining Company
- Al-Muslimah (Botswana Muslim Organisation women`s Wing)

- Christian Churches such as UCCSA, Bible Life Ministries, Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Seventh Day Adventist, Dutch Reformed church
- Lions Club

THE ROLE OF ORGANISATIONS THAT HELP ORPHANS

Organisation	Roles
1. The Government	- Orphans are registered with social workers so that they can be given clothes, food, uniform, transport money and money for school fees.
2. Christian denominations, eg: Roman, Lutheran, Dutch, SDA, UCCSA etc	- Build and run orphanages around the country. - Donates money to organisations which help orphans. - Counsel, support and advice orphans. - Help orphans find employment after they have reached the age og 18years.

4. Masiela Trust Fund	- Built orphanages. - Pay study fees for orphans at childcare centres and tertiary institutions.
5. Masiela Foundation	- Provide orphans with clothes and food on monthly basis. - Buy school uniforms for them.
6. Debswana Mining Company	- Donated The Mpule Kwelagobe Children`s Centre to care for orphans and other children with problems.
7. The Red Cross	- Make people aware of the problems faced by orphans. - They raise funds and collect food and clothing which they give to orphans.
8. ATR	- Relatives care for children left by the dead person.

PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH ORPHAN-HOOD

- Lack of parental love, care, security and protection.
- Loss of sense of belonging.
- Orphans could lose hope in life.
- Emotional trauma due shock brought by the loss.
- Relative may take advantage of them and misuse their inheritance.
- Lack of guidance.
- Children may end up as street kids.
- Children may become thieves or prostitutes in order to have money to survive.
- Older orphans maybe burdened with the responsibility of caring for their younger orphan siblings.
- Teenage girls may become pregnant.
- They orphans may leave school if there is no one caring for them.

WAYS OF DEALING WITH PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH ORPHAN-HOOD

- Adoption: if children are adopted, they can have a home and parents who will guide and take care of them. The government has rules for adoption so that people who adopt orphans know what is expected
- Orphanages: The government, non-governmental organisations and individuals have built orphanages to care for orphans.
- Extended family: society is encouraged to follow some values of the past whereby the extended families take of orphans with love and compassion.

- Laws: the government has laws relating to orphans. There should be close monitoring of orphans so that people do not take advantage of them or abuse the. .

ADOPTION

- Adoption is when a family make a child who is not their biological child part of their family.
- Orphaned children are usually adopted.

ADVANTAGES OF ADOPTION
- It enables orphans to have parents after losing their own.
- It enables orphans to feel loved and wanted again.
- Orphans will be raised in a loving environment.
- Orphans will receive proper guidance and support from their new family.
- Protects orphans against acts of abuse.
- The child will learn new things.

PROBLEMS THAT COULD ARISE WITH ADOPTION
- It might take a long time for the child to get used to the new family.
- Sometimes the new parents might not treat the adopted child as their own. The parents can make them do all the work.
- New parents may adopt the children because they want their property.
- Children might behave well towards their new parents because they are not their real parents.
- Not getting along with children of the new family.
- Feeling isolated and missing their own families.
- Having to learn new ways of behaving.

CONTRIBUTIONS MADE BY DIFFERENT RELIGIONS TOWARDS THE UNDERPRIVILEGED
- People are underprivileged when they have to survive with a low standard of living and they do not have what other people have in life.
- People who are underprivileged include:
    - Poor people
    - Disabled people
    - Orphans
    - Street children

Religion	Contribution
1. Christianity	- Donate food, clothes and blankets to poor people. - Donates money and build houses foe homeless people as well as orphans.
2. Islam	- Giving to the poor (zakat) is one of pillars of Muslims. They donate clothes, food and blankets and other necessities.
3. ATR	- Some parts of harvest were stored to help the poor in times of need. - Majako: when a person helps in the field and then rewarded with part of the harvest. - Mafisa: loaning cattle to the poor so that they help themselves with milk and ploughing. - Molaletsa: a form of cooperation where a people came together to help in doing some field management practices. They were thanked with food and traditional beer.

SUMMARY

Children whose parents are dead are called orphans. Many people and organisations help in taking care of orphans. Orphans are faced with a number of problems such as abuse, not receiving love and misuse of their inheritance. Orphans can be adopted. In their families they feel love, care and acceptance.

DESTITUTION

- A destitute is a person who does not have money, food, clothes, a place to live and other things needed in life (people who are very poor).

WAYS IN WHICH INDIVIDUALS SHOULD SHOW CARE FOR DESTITUTES

- Traditionally, destitutes were helped through Mafisa, Majako and Molaletsa.
  Members of the community may help destitutes by:
- Giving them donations.
- Building them a house.
- Employing them.
- Teaching them skills which they can use to find or create jobs.
- Helping protecting their rights.
- Protecting them from abuse.
- Providing destitutes with services like making their laundry or fetching firewood.
- Adopting or helping care for orphans who are destitutes.

WAYS IN WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HELPS DESTITUTES

- Registered destitutes are given food rations and food baskets on monthly basis.
- They are given money to buy items like meat, vegetables, toiletry and other necesseties.
- Their children are sent to school and the government pays all expenses needed.
- Some are hired to work in drought relief programs.

SUMMARY

Destitutes are important members of the community therefore; they deserve to be helped so they can live a normal life. They should be treated with dignity and respect. Individuals, organisation and the government help them to live better lives.
